Washington Letter. (From our regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, Feb. 20,'25

Nothing seems to turn the tide of Cabinet talk in Washington. The various knots of politicians about the Capitol and in the hotel lobbies discuss nothing else, and their conclusions, so far as can be ascertained, are that Senator Lamar has been fixed upon for Secretary of the Interior and that Mr. Vilas is the coming Postmaster General: It is admitted by close friends of Mr. Cleveland that he has been purplexed in choosing a Secretary of the Treasury. It is now believed that Mr. Daniel Manning will have that position, or that he can have it, if he is willing to accept it. With regard to the Navy de partment it is understood that Mr Cleveland has been undecided.

As the case stands now, with all the information in possession of democrats here, the prevailing opinion is that Senator Bayard will be Secretary of State, Senator Lamar Secretary of the Interior, Senator Garland Attorney General, Mr. Manning Secretary of the Treasury and Mr. Vilas probably Postmaster General. There are some who believe that Mr. Vilus will be made Secretary of War, and that Mr. Thurman will be provided for. Some Senators atill adhere to the belief that Mr. Me-Donald will be called into the cabinet, but the general idea, apparently based upon pretty good information, is that he has been dropped from considera-

I hear that Mr. Vilas, of Wi-consin will be an ornament to Cleveland's Cab net, should be be taken in by the President-elect. Value is about forey-five years old and handsome. He has a fine presence, easy manners, and is called a "right good fellow" by the Wisconsiners of both parties. He has sufficient wealth to entertain handsomely and a . ife who will like to do it. They say he has brains enough to fill any position in the Cabinet, the Treasury excepted, but solely because he has not given special study to finance. I hear that the Wisconsin people wish him to be either Postmaster General or Scoretary of the Interior, and that they do not consider the War portfolio large enough for him.

pronounce the renting of the Butler mansion for Senate committee rooms the most useless act of governmental extravagance on a small scale yet recorded. The annual rental amounts to $10,000, and the building was procured to provide five committees with rooms, neither one of which has any public business on hand or to report at this late stage of the session. When the building was leased the furniture of Senator Jones, of Nevada, who had occupied the mausion, was for sale. A portion of the farniture was bought by the government for use of the committee rooms, and the judgement displayed in making selections is madi ested in the to use Dr. wavsott's Yell-w Dock and Sarsapurchase of a number of chairs at the Parilla. Its effect on me was soon indicated price of $25 each. Some of the elegant carpets; which Senator Jones had put down when he first furnished the ma sion, were also taken by the government at high figures. In a few days Congress will adjourn, but a resolution has passed the Senate for the appointment of extra messengers, and janitors to guard the Butler mansion, and the costly government furniture it contains, during the recess.

The idea of Congress in leasing this soem, the old man is beli ved to be it never fails to cure.

very hard up. The recent transaction by waich he placed a $90,000 mortgage on two of his Capitol Hill houses was quite astonishing to a multitude of people. It has been believed that Butler was always able to draw his check for at least $100,000. The common explanation of his finaucial condition is that he spent a great deal more money in politics than he could immediately command. I am told that Butler's presidential aspirations cost him ever $200,000, and that he borrowed in all f.r't.e last campaign, through Cassell, $100.000; $30,000 was loaned to him for use in the campaign in which he was detented for Governor of Massachusetts; $70,000 was borrowed in September ast. He gave his note for $10,000, pay able this month, and a mortgage on the No houses for the balance.

The Squate toed the mark last week n the land-grant question, passing the toxas l'aci. e torni are bill with only two dissenting voices. But notwithstanding this show of activity Congress will have to do a rushing business this week in order to avoid an extra session after the 4th, of March.

The Washington Monument was dedicated with approriate and imposing ceremonies on Saturday. The city was gaily decorated with flags and bunting, which gave rich effects of color in the bright saulight. The first part of the ceremonies took place at the monument grounds, where the shaft was dedicated by President Arthur to the memory of Washington. The procession then marched to the Capitol, where the proceedings comprised an oration by Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, of Mass., read by Hon. John D. Long, of that state, and an oration by Iton. John W.
